Blue Reflective Glass Is Highlight Of Capital Office Park Extension

by Elaine Skolnik

Greenbelt's ever-changing landscape has a new dimension. Rising high on a hill overlooking the Beltway is the first of twin office buildings that will become the centerpiece for the Capital Office Park development when the more than 60-acre full-service complex is complete. Joining four existing structures and the Greenbelt Hilton and Towers, the eight story Building 5 is expected to open in May 1987. When fully developed the park will consist of the Hilton, eight office buildings and a private heliport serving businesses employing 5,000 persons.

Developed by Springhill Lake Associates Limited Partnership, Capital Office Park (COP) is bounded by the Capital Beltway and Kenilworth Avenue. Four existing buildings and the Hilton are sited south of Ivy Lane, with Building 5 and future structures positioned on the north side.

A new look featuring blue reflective glass is to distinguish the newer cluster of buildings across Ivy Lane from the existing chunky grouping. The new style is described by the architectural firm of CHK as "creating a little different image and more strength," yet that blends in harmoniously with the strong sculptured look of the first set of buildings. CHK architects designed the Springhill Lake Apartment development, the Hilton and Capital Office Park.

"The evolved design is a great complement to what we have there now and fits in with our overall concept," said Richard Perkins, a partner in Springhill Lake Associates.

According to CHK architect Lou Bernardo, the design change is "today's architecture and makes a statement that gives the total park character."

The 173,800-square-foot Building 5 has 165,000 square feet of rentable space. Both this structure and Building 6 will feature semi-circular glass bays enhanced by dramatic blue reflective glass exteriors.

"This is a new color and design," said Dennis Burke of Community Realty Company, Inc., the firm that leases and manages Capital Office Park.

Bernardo felt the change would enhance the park's desirability. "There is enough diversity and at the same time there is a cohesiveness by the sharing of similar design factors," he commented.

Bernardo explained that "a visual togetherness" will be achieved by use of similar building materials and site orientation. The first three completed buildings form a cluster that angles away in parallel rows from the Beltway to take advantage of the

The reelection of Parris Glendening as Prince Georges County Executive and the passage by voters of a bond referendum to improve and construct roads and other county facilities sent a clear message that the development boom in the county will continue. For over a decade officials have sought increasing revenues by attracting high-quality office parks, high-technology and industrial centers and hotels.

Greenbelt is the hub of what has been coined the "Billion Dollar Circle" — where the Baltimore-Washington Parkway, Capital Beltway, Greenbelt Road and Kenilworth Avenue all come together. Here three office complexes — Capital Office Park, Maryland Trade Center Park and The Golden Triangle — have been given Priority Project status by the Prince Georges County Economic Development Corporation (EDC). Working under contract to the county, EDC is a private, non-profit organization promoting economic development within the county.

EDC's current publication, "Follow Success to Prince Georges County, Maryland, describes Greenbelt as follows: "... the model planned community of Greenbelt has always sought quality development. That policy is visible today in custom-built houses and in residential projects like Glen Ora and Greenwood Village; and in office parks like the Maryland Trade Center, the Golden Triangle and Capital Office Park. The city's ... retail centers are active, as the biggest, Beltway Plaza Regional Shopping Mall, continues to expand, and the newest, Greenway Center, continues to run ahead of forecasts."

The mushrooming of intense development in Greenbelt and its environs has, however, caused serious traffic problems, especially in Greenbelt East (that part of the city east of the Baltimore-Washington Parkway). Over the years the city has argued that public improvements, highways in particular, should be in place before development is permitted to go forward. Now that reconstruction of the Greenbelt Road/Kenilworth Avenue interchange is underway and other improvements, such as the extension of Hanover Parkway, are programmed, concern is being voiced that their completion will signal further development of still-vacant lands, so that roads will continue to be clogged.

The same concern about over-development has caused successive Greenbelt city councils to oppose widening of Kenilworth Avenue extended northward to Muirkirk Road and Route 1. It is believed inevitable that such widening would bring increased traffic, especially trucks, into the city.

The Greenbelt News Review in coming months will publish an ongoing series of articles on commercial and residential development projects in the city.

seasons and maximize energy conservation. The warm gray structures consist of precast concrete and window overhangs giving protection from the summer sun.

Bernardo pointed out that while the fourth existing building stands alone, it is "architecturally harmonious" with those built earlier. There is the same strong sculptured look, the solar bronze and thermopane window glass and site orientation. Building 4, he said, is the "transition building" which ties in the existing design with the new concept—where precast concrete and window overhangs still predominate but, for the first time, some reflective insulating glass was introduced to eliminate the need for overhangs.

"The Jewel"

The blue reflective glass, which Bernardo describes as "the jewel of that composition," is the hallmark of Building 5. This time, pure wire precast concrete is utilized. The newest structure will house state-of-the art energy efficiency and life safety systems, as well as an underground garage. A fitness center is planned.

The building's main entrance off Ivy Lane leads into a high tech lobby with plastic laminates on some walls, polished stainless steel column covers and elevator doors, and marble floors. A landscaped patio area will tie Buildings 5 and 6 together.

Perkins described parking areas as heavily landscaped and at various grades to avoid a "flat look."

"They echo the forms of the buildings," said Bernardo. Parking areas will be reached from Kenilworth Avenue via Ivy Lane, and later from the yet-to-be-built Cherrywood Lane.

The 10-story Building 6 will join its twin "when market conditions are favorable," said Perkins. The buildings are sited on 19.5 acres between Ivy Lane and the future Cherrywood Lane which will span the Beltway and connect with Kenilworth Avenue when Metrorail is completed.

The Capital Office Park master plan calls for Buildings 7 and 8

East-bound Lanes Open On Greenbelt Road Bridge

by Diane Oberg

The next phase of the reconstruction of the Greenbelt Road Kenilworth Avenue intersection began on the afternoon of Monday, December 15 when east-bound traffic on Greenbelt Road began using the new bridge over what will be Kenilworth Avenue.

Mike Snyder, District Engineer of the State Highway Administration said that the traffic delays experienced Tuesday were due in part to the timing of the lights, and part to the separation of the lights for Greenbelt Road traffic.

Snyder said the Wednesday morning rush hour traffic was much better than Tuesday's and that things should improve over the next few days as the crew fine-tunes the traffic signal timing. He noted that when the initial detour was begun a year ago it took three to four days to fully adjust the signals.

However, Snyder said that delays should be expected due to the separation of the Greenbelt road signals until westbound traffic begins using the bridge. That is, since the Greenbelt Road traffic now requires two separate signals, more time is required for a full signal cycle. The rains predicted for Wednesday and Thursday may delay required asphalt work, but Snyder expects all Greenbelt Road traffic to be using the bridge by the end of the year.

Once westbound Greenbelt road traffic is shifted, no further traffic pattern changes are expected for about six months. Snyder said the entire reconstruction project is still expected to be completed by mid-summer of next year.

Drive and Walk with Care Keep Christmas Joyous!

by Eileen Peterson

'Tis the season to beware.

Within the next few days, children will be out of school and, most likely, flying down sidewalks and driveways on new skates, bikes or just plain foot-power in the excitement of holiday play.

And joggers — old and new — will be out in new suits, shoes or whatever. And the beware part is that most of them — and some of the children — will be in the street.

This week, police in the metropolitan Washington area are publicizing their crackdown on drunk drivers, and drivers and pedestrians alike must watch for this obvious danger. But in Greenbelt, where walkways are prevalent and walking is almost a Greenbelt virtue, residents may be lulled into thinking that the dangers are only out there on the Beltway or Greenbelt Road.

Not so, comments PFC Patrick McAndrew of the Greenbelt Police Department. Recently, a resident was very seriously injured by a car driven into her as she got into her own car. There appears to be little she could have done to avoid the accident.

The last two pedestrian fatalities in Greenbelt, however, might have been avoided. Both people were struck down while walking in the road after dark, one in an area where there was a black-topped sidewalk at curbside.

Bright clothing or reflective-taped clothing may or may not help. The driver may see you, all right, but just before he or she hits you. These are the shortest days of the year.

Crescent Road, with its curves and its increasing use as a through street by commuters wanting to get east or west while avoiding the Greenbelt Road-Kenilworth Avenue intersection, is especially dangerous. If there is no sidewalk or footpath nearby, pedestrians should walk on the inner side of parked cars. At night, carrying a flashlight also helps.

Drivers are often distracted by holiday plans and tend to drive faster and be less attentive, especially after dark. One important safety factor is light. Cars should be checked periodically for two working headlights and other signal lights. On the less-than-a-mile drive to the News Review office Tuesday evening, three cars were seen driving with one headlight working, and another two cars had defective brake lights and turn lights.

The driver out there may live in Greenbelt. Officer McAndrew, born and raised in Greenbelt, urges his neighbors to drive responsibly and walk carefully. Let's make this the season, he says, to be safe.

Linguists Visit Language Classes

Recently, members of the 629th Military Intelligence Battalion (CEWI) or the Maryland Army National Guard, located in Greenbelt, spent time with some foreign language classes at Eleanor Roosevelt High School, giving students a taste of the practical application of their language skills.

Patrick Murphy, one of the Career Counselors at Roosevelt, originally paved the way for the linguists and other representatives to come into the school.

During their stay, the visitors presented an overview of the intelligence battalion and its area of responsibility within the Maryland Army National Guard. Students learned how the Army trains its linguists and how the skills are valuable to students when they attend College or apply for jobs in the intelligence community in the D.C. area.

Hosp. Computer Answers Heart Questions by Phone

Like to know how much longer a person would live if he/she lost 20 pounds? Cut back two cigarettes a day? Lowered his/her resting heart rate by 10 beats a minute? Had a blood pressure reading of 120 over 80?

Using Washington Adventist Hospital's Heart Chec Computer and a touch tone phone, it is possible to find out.

Call (301) 881-5222 (local to Washington area). A hospital computer will ask the caller to answer some questions by pressing buttons on the touch tone phone, e.g. sex, weight, height, how much he/she smokes? etc.

People can learn what they may or may not want to know! How old a body thinks it is. The chance of dying in the next 10 years compared to someone the same age and sex with ideal risk factors. How old a heart thinks it is. The chance of getting heart disease in the next 10 years compared to someone the same age and sex with ideal risk factors.

For the first time anyone with access to a touch tone phone can get a direct answer to questions such as —What difference will it make if I quit smoking or lose weight or lower my resting pulse rate.

Washington Adventist Hospital is the first in the nation to make this program available. The call is free. Heart Chec is one way Washington Adventist Hospital helps people stay healthier longer.

Also taking three awards was Esther Yalowitz—a first-place in women's table tennis and second place in both the 100 meter dash and in billiards. She competed in the 60-64 age group.

Leonie Penney took a first-place in swimming for the 100 yard breast stroke, competing in the 65-69 age group.

Fond Memories

To the Editor:

On a recent Monday evening, I traveled from Frederick to Greenbelt to retrieve some of my early News Review stories. Accompanied by my 13-year old son, I endured the ups and downs of Beltway traffic, finally landing in the parking lot at Greenbelt Plaza Apartments.

I was a staffer on the News Review from 1976 to 1982, a little over five years. But for a fire which destroyed our building in Greenbelt Plaza, I'm sure I would still be coming to the News Review every week to type and write news stories.

On this particular rainy Monday night, re-entering that subterranean room, with its blazing orange walls, eclectic office furnishings and diverse decor was a bittersweet walk down memory lane for me. After gathering several years' worth of yearbooks, I hauled them to a nearby table and began paging through Greenbelt history. Brief as my stories were back then, they began to appear in those volumes, from the first four paragraph account about the "Nook and Cranny" back in 1977, winding down through succeeding years with a piece on refunding, a reenactment of Leo Gerton's famous fish fry and tidbits on Utopia events.

While gingerly flipping through those books, I found articles by other gifted former Greenbelters and by the time I had finished this mental flashback nearly three hours had elapsed. I was having so much fun I didn't realize that time had sped by so quickly. Ignoring my son's pleadings to go home, I pulled about 30 old newspapers from the bank of files, all the time talking to the editor and snatching looks around the office.

"Something is different about this place", I thought. Then I realized that there were newer pieces of furniture and typewriters, and that a network of pipes on the ceiling had been relieved of their asbestos coverings. "That must be it," I thought. Frankly, the office looks a lot better now.

As I drove home, memories of past Tuesday nights kept coming back as the mile markers melted away. In that room, aided by some of the most dedicated professionals I've ever met, I discovered the joy of writing. I had lived through many rollercoaster moments while going through those first stories, but I wouldn't trade the News Review experience for all the Pulitzers in the world.

As I drove on, the bustle and clamor of a new issue being born came to mind. Some excerpts:

"Do we go to eight pages or 12?"

"Who has the head sheet?"

From a baffled typist to the editor: "Mary Lou, what is this word?"

"I really enjoyed your last story, Hally."

"Harry, that hat beats them all"

"Who scarfed the tape?"

"There's a hole in this typewriter ribbon!"

And from a hassled editor trying to think through this din:

"Shhhhhhhhh!!!"

Add to these voices the almost constant entering and exiting of nearly every citizen in Greenbelt, assorted children and an occasional stray cat, you have one of the most vital hubs of ongoing activity in the city. Contrary to what many people may think, Greenbelt's action isn't happening solely at the many meetings or the City Council chambers. It's happening in the News Review office. For a few hectic hours each week, this is the heart of the city of Greenbelt.

With much regret, my family and I left Greenbelt and now live in a different community about 40 miles north. We've come to think of the bustling city as home, but old habits die hard. Even now, nearly five years later, I still think I should be going to the News Review office on Tuesday nights. In my mind's eye, I'm still there, plunking away on that old museum piece of a... typewriter, helping get yet another issue of the paper out on time.

As the News Review begins its 50th year of continuous publication, a former staffer would like to wish the paper and its past, present and future staff a happy anniversary. Hopefully, with the support of the people of Greenbelt, there will be many more.

Youth Football

by Jeff Keir

The 1986 Greenbelt Boys and Girls Club's football season ended Saturday, November 22 with the club's traditional end-of-season Raider Bowl at Braden Field. Both Greenbelt teams had strong AAA league opponents and lost in well-played tight games.

At the end of each game, trophies were given to the players selected as outstanding in their positions. For the Greenbelt 75 lb. AA team: Eric Umphries was named the Raider Bowl's best offensive back; Damian Kelly, best defensive back; Andre Summers, best offensive lineman; and Dustin Barnett, best defensive back. For the Greenbelt 95 lb. AA county champions: David Crooks was named the Raider Bowl's best offensive back; Tommy Ray, best defensive back; Billy Orndol, best offensive lineman; and Jason Beach, defensive lineman.

Between the two Raider Bowl games the Chip Sacra Sportsmanship Award was presented to the player on each team that exhibited the greatest desire, effort, teamwork, cooperation and sportsmanship during the season. The two honorees were Dustin Barnett of the 75 lb. team, and Mike Sweeney of the 95 lb. team.

The coaches of the 75 lb. team also presented trophies to team members, recognizing season-long achievements. Robbie King was the team's most valuable player; Steven Durity, most improved player; Maurice Carter, toughest player; and Eric Umphries and Damian Kelly each received a trophy for excellent performance.

Football sign-ups for the 1987 football season will be held in mid-July. The club thanks all those people who made the 1986 football sports program the great success it was!

Co-op Program Is Successful

Capital Institute of Technology has placed 37 students in technology related jobs this fall, including three Greenbelt students in its four-year-old cooperative education program. The three Greenbelt students who were placed in co-op jobs are: Farid Baybordi, Assistant Engineer with NEC America, Inc.; Nicholas Kotanchik, Technician and Ronald Pawlowski, Technical Service Representative with MCI Telecommunications Corp.

Cooperative education fulfills a need between higher education and industry. It allows students to "earn while they learn" and orients them to professional jobs. In return, participating companies can preview potential employees without obligation to hire them permanently. They can also begin grooming these students while they work through the co-op program for full-time jobs after graduation. Participating companies include GTE, IBM, MCI, NASA / Goddard Space Flight Center and the Washington Post.

CITY NOTES

Tim Houchens, Richard Mills, Bill Phelan and Kenny Hall attended "Controlling Costs" seminars sponsored by Building and Grounds Maintenance in Washington, D.C. recently.

Members of the general crew worked on snow plows, repaired the big loader and cleaned storm sewers and worked on curbs and gutters.

Members of the special detail crew reinstalled a stop sign which had been removed at the corner of Westway and Ridge Road. They, together with members of the general crew, refinished the floor at the gym at the Youth Center.

The parks crew had the leaf vac out one day this week.

Because of the heavy backlog of special trash pickups, several members of all the crews worked one day toward bringing the schedule current.

The parks crew prepared an area for the storage of playground bedding material. This is a new material which the parks crew is obtaining which is made of rubber in a fine shredded fashion to replace the material formerly used under swings, slides, etc. This material is being obtained at no cost from a company in Hagerstown. However, the City must pick it up. A stock pile will be picked up and stored and used as needed under the various pieces of playground equipment.

Foster Homes Sought For "Pilot Puppies"

Prince Georges County 4-H office is looking for "Foster Homes" for Pilot Dogs.

Loving care in the homes of 4-H Volunteers give guide dogs a good start before their serious training begins. Regardless of the quality of breeding a pup has little chance of becoming a guide dog unless it is raised in a home and accustomed to playing with children, meeting strangers, and having the opportunity to be near traffic as well as occasionally riding in a car.

Pups are placed into homes at 7 to 10 weeks of age. They are kept in the home until they are 12 to 14 months of age or until they are requested by the "Pilot Dogs, Inc." The Pilot Dog people supply a leash, choker collar, brush and comb and reimburse the foster homes for veterinarian bills.

Interested persons may call the Prince Georges County Extension, 4-H office (952-3136) to get more information and an application.

3 ways the right apartment community can save you time.

#1 Location

"It doesn't get much easier than this. Robert works at NASA, less than 10 minutes away, and I'm never late to work in the city. It's a breeze from the B/W Parkway."

#2 Recreation

"With as much energy as there is in our home we had to live where there were activities close by for all of us. My wife enjoys the slim-nastics and Open U. classes. The little ones love the playgrounds and swimming pools. And me... well, I like tennis. Yes, we're very happy here!"

#3 Interiors

"Just starting up my own interior design firm, I am aware of the very practical ways that the right apartment can simplify life. You know, new contemporary kitchens, intelligent floor plans, efficient use of space, and even beige plush carpeting. My Springhill Lake apartment passed all my criteria with flying colors."

Police Blotter

Based on Information Released by the Greenbelt Police Department

A 62-year-old woman was approached about 1 p.m., December 10 in the 7500 block of Greenway Drive by a man who grabbed her purse and tried to pull it away from her. Unsuccessful in his efforts he jumped into a waiting car, a dull blue older compact 4-door sedan. Maryland tags, and escaped. He was white, 19-20 years, 5'9", 150 lbs., red hair, wearing a blue jacket. A second white male, 19-20 years, drove the car.

At the Roosevelt Center Mall on Centerway, Officer Mike Lucia arrested a 42-year-old Greenbelt man about 9:25 p.m., December 10 for consuming alcohol (beer) in public, and at 10:05 p.m. the same evening Sgt. Chief Craze tried to stop the striking vehicle but the car was driven off with the chief in pursuit. At the 11 Court of Southway three males jumped from the car and fled into nearby woods. Responding officers located and arrested two non-resident juveniles, both 15 years old. The third, a 16-year-old Lanham resident was arrested the next day. The car they were in had been reported stolen to Prince Georges County police. There were no injuries in the hit and run accident.

Investigating a traffic accident about 3:50 p.m., December 6 at Edmonston and Greenbelt Roads Officer Steve Keller found that the operator, while under the influence of PCP, had driven his car across a median strip and four lanes of traffic, slamming into a construction barrier. He was taken into custody and committed for emergency examination to the psychiatric unit at Prince Georges General Hospital.

A purse containing a large amount of personal property was stolen about 7:30 p.m., December 8 from a shopper at the Safeway store in Greenway Center. While the victim's attention was diverted by a person asking her to help read the label on a product a second person stole the purse from the victim's shopping cart. Within 24 hours someone tried to cash one of the victim's checks in Montgomery County but was not arrested. Investigation is continuing.

Two indecent exposures were reported at Greenbelt Lake in Buddy Attick Park on December 10, at 9:30 a.m. and again at 5:10 p.m. Officer Troy Harding arrested a 21-year-old man of no fixed address in the second incident and investigation is continuing in the suspect's possible connection with the earlier incident. He was held on $2000 bond.

The Maryland State flag was stolen during the early morning hours of December 7 from the flagpole in front of the Municipal Building on Crescent Road.

Officer Alan Caho arrested a 20-year-old Reisterstown, Md. man about 4 p.m., December 5 at the Beltway Plaza mall after he was found in possession of a substantial quantity of suspected cocaine. He was charged with possession with intent to distribute a controlled dangerous substance and held on $25,000 bond.

Officer Tom Kemp arrested a 25-year-old D.C. resident about 11:30 a.m., December 8 at the Princess Shop in Beltway Plaza for shoplifting after the man concealed nine pairs of pants in a bag and left the store without paying. He was charged with theft and held on $1000 bond.

Officer Troy Harding recovered

a stolen 1986 Dodge Lancer about 9 a.m., December 7 in the 5900 block of Cherrywood Terrace and arrested a 21-year-old Greenbelt man in connection with the theft. The suspect was held on $1000 bond pending trial.

A 1985 Toyota Camry, stolen December 7 from the parking lot at the Greenbelt Hilton, 6400 block of Ivy Lane, was recovered December 9 with one arrest by the D.C. Metropolitan Police in the 2500 block of Alabama Ave., S.E.

Electronic equipment valued at $1200 including a VCR video camera, was stolen December 8 from an office suite at the Maryland Trade Center in the 7500 block of Greenway Center Drive.

Soccer News

by Kevin Wheatley

The Greenbelt 10-and-under soccer team started its winter season Sunday against the 1977 Bowie Hawks.

The Hawks, 8-1 last fall, placed second in the No. 2 division of the N.C.S.L., a league covering five counties and Baltimore City.

From the opening whistle, Greenbelt took control and completely dominated the entire game, winning by a score of 5-2. However, it must be pointed out that Bowie is a 1977 team and Greenbelt is a 1976 team entry. Six boys on our team were one year older than the Hawks. With this in mind, the match cannot be used as a barometer as to how well the team will do this winter.

Next week's match-up will be a very good indicator, as Greenbelt takes on the Freestate Flyers, another N.C.S.T. team.

The Flyers, in the 1976 Md. "A" division and with two games to finish, had a record of 5 wins, 2 losses and were in first place as of November 12.

Greenbelt's team clearly has its work cut out for it. To beat the Flyers or tie or even lose a close game to them would mean Greenbelt is a serious contender. This is an important game this Saturday, to say the least!

The team: Jason Everhart, Daniel Gomez, Jason Harbin, Greg Hunanian, Eric Jorgenson, Kevin Lynch, Scott Lubey, Miguel Pereira, Marc Selawy, Kriss Todd, T. J. Trimble, Adam Wheatley and Shawn Wilson.

Congratulations are in order to these fine young men, not just for the soccer skills they possess, but for the academic achievement for which they strive. Eighty-five percent of this team is made up of Honor Roll students and nothing, not even soccer, is more important!

Congratulations again.

Harmful Effects of Fat Explained in Free Booklet

"All About Fat and Cancer Risk" makes clear how important the fat in our diet is to the health risks we all face.

According to the Institute booklet the average American diet gets about 40 percent of its calories in the form of dietary fat. Because of the links which some research has shown between high fat diets and cancers of the breast, stomach and colon, the American Institute for Cancer Research recommends reducing fat to 30 percent or less of daily calories.

The booklet discusses dietary fat, about the health risks it represents, and tips on how to reduce it in one's diet. To receive a free copy of the booklet, please send a stamped, addressed, business-sized envelope to American Institute for Cancer Research, Dept. FC, Washington, D.C. 20069.

The J.S.A. is inaugurating an additional systematic review of Youth Services Bureaus this year, which is to be coordinated with its ongoing on-site evaluations, done by prevention specialist monitors.

CARES and the city of Greenbelt served as a host for the Maryland Association of Youth Services Bureaus day long workshop on Acquired Immune Deficiency Syndrome. School System Honored For Its Health Program

Two public school systems in Maryland have been selected as among the best public school health education programs in the country by the Metropolitan Life Foundation in their "Healthy Me" campaign. Two of the winning programs, from Washington County and Prince Georges County Public Schools, were each awarded $5,000 to continue their efforts in providing quality comprehensive health education.

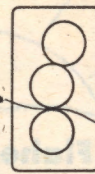

The Prince Georges County Public Schools won its award for

Michael T. Rose Is '86 Top Professional

Michael T. Rose, of Michael T. Rose Associates, the developer of Greenbrook, Greenbelt's new single family and townhouse development, was named the Industry Professional of the Year by the Commercial Builders Council of the Suburban Maryland Building Industry Association (SMBIA).

Rose was given the award during a recent SMBIA ceremony at Martin's Crosswinds in Greenbelt.

The award was presented to Rose by his peers in the Maryland suburban area for his leadership in the commercial / industrial segment of the building and development industry. He was also cited for his professionalism, guidance, and ongoing interest in the future of commercial building.

"I am extremely pleased by the honor," Rose said. "I believe it reinforces the idea that it is imperative for successful commercial development in the area to be blended into a community setting."

Rose cited his newest development, Greenbrook, off Hanover Parkway, as a prime example. At Greenbrook, Rose is not only bringing the first new single-family homes to Greenbelt, he is also anchoring the development with a commercial townhouse office complex. Both, he said, reinforce the idea of a "high end" development.

Rose began his real estate career in California 24 years ago. He was Vice President with the Larwin Group, the nationwide realty branch of the CNA Insurance Corporation, and Executive Vice President with Carl M. Freeman Associates in the Washington metropolitan area, before starting Michael T. Rose Associates in Rose is now in the process of developing Laurel Lakes, the 275-acre planned community in Laurel.

Construction recently started at Greenbrook, the 74-acre community bordering the Greenway Center. When completed, Greenbelt's newest single-family-home neighborhood will include over 100 single-family homes, 220 townhouses and a six-acre lake and park that will extend to the Schrom Hills Community Park.

and the heliport to be located on about 16 acres off the new Cherrywood Lane.

A decision has not been made on building a gas station on Ivy Lane near the State Highway Administration building.

Leasing 4

"We don't suffer the same leasing problems as some other developments in the Greenbelt area," said Perkins.

Since the first building made its debut in January 1980, Capital Office Park has been successful in its leasing efforts. Except for temporary vacancies, the four existing buildings remain fully leased. In the county the vacancy rate for office buildings is about 15%. The rate is expected to fall, however, when the Federal tax reform bill is implemented, because reduction of tax shelters should slow future office building construction.

Perkins is upbeat about Capital Office Park's future. "We deal strictly in economics rather than tax benefits," he explained.

Jim Myrtle, business development specialist for the Prince Georges County Economic Development Corporation, attributes Capital Office Park's success to easy access to highways, airports and rail; to its high visibility on the Beltway; and to its high-quality design and construction.

Greenbelt, he noted, is located strategically in the middle of the Baltimore-Washington corridor (including Annapolis) near governmental agencies — National Aeronautics and Space Administration and Beltsville Agricultural Research Center — and institutions of higher learning, such as the University of Maryland, Prince Georges Community College and Capital Institute of Technology.

According to Myrtle, road improvements that are underway and planned in the Greenbelt area and the expected arrival of Metrorail in the mid-1990's also make Greenbelt a choice location in the corridor for commercial, industrial and residential development.

Firms located within Capital Office Park include Martin Marietta Data Systems, International Business Machines, Weyerhaeuser, Johnston Lemon & Co.

New Employees Join Community Realty

Joining Community Realty Company, Inc. in the Capital Office Park are Robert DeWitt, Carol Gable and Randi Schindler.

Asst. Manager Arrested In Drug Fair Robbery

by Jack Brickman

The assistant manager of the Drug Fair at Beltway Plaza and two male accomplices have been arrested by Greenbelt police in the armed robbery of the store in which the assistant manager was employed, according to police spokesman Pat McAndrew. Shortly before the store's midnight closing time on Saturday, December 13 the three men, carrying handguns and a sawed-off .22 caliber rifle, entered the store. In an effort to conceal their identity during the robbery one man wore a paper bag over his head, another wore a nylon stocking and the third held a hat over his face. They made off with over $12,000 in cash.

Greenbelt police detectives William Allwang and Tim Hahn, investigating the robbery, learned from store employees that they had recognized the voice of one of the holdup men as that of the store's assistant manager, Talbert A. Simpson, age 25, of Silver Spring. Following up on this information, Detectives Allwang and Hahn arrested Simpson at his home and recovered the weapons which had been used in the robbery, together with $3,279 of the stolen money. Simpson had been employed at the store for about two months, according to McAndrew.

Through further investigation detectives Allwang and Hahn were able to identify Simpson's two accomplices. Their investigation also led them to an alley in the rear of a car wash in the 5700 block of Georgia Ave., N.W. in D.C., where they recovered bank deposit bags and other evidence connected with the robbery.

Michael A. Chambers, age 21, of Hyattsville, was arrested at his home, and Ludlow P. Bryan, also 21, and a District resident, came to the Greenbelt police headquarters and turned himself in. He had on him at the time

$2,364 of the stolen money. According to McAndrew, all three men confessed to their participation in the robbery.

Talbert Simpson, the Drug Fair assistant manager, was held on $10,000 bond on charges of robbery with a dangerous weapon, use of a handgun in the commission of a felony and possession of a sawed-off .22 caliber rifle. Michael Chambers was held on $25,000 bond and charged with robbery with a dangerous weapon. Ludlow Bryan was held on $10,000 bond and charged with robbery with a dangerous weapon and use of a handgun in the commission of a felony. All three were incarcerated at the Prince Georges County Detention Center.
